

Emergency Management Best Practices for Tribal Nations

FEMA COURSE AWR-316

EQUIPPING TRIBAL LEADERS TO BUILD EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT PROGRAMS

Course Overview:

Tribal Nation emergency managers are facing many challenges and obstacles to implementing emergency management programs. This awareness level course is designed to outline strategies and resources for establishing an effective emergency management program. This course will explore emergency management program standards, best practices, funding resources, methods for qualifying for grants, framework for understanding FEMA doctrine and guidance, and other available training opportunities for Tribal Nations. Upon completing this course, participants will receive references containing lists of these resources, strategies that Tribal Nations have used to successfully implement emergency management programs, and a better understanding how an emergency management framework can enhance Tribal Nation readiness and resilience.

Course Scope:

This course provides an overview of emergency management programs and best practices that can be used by Tribal Nations to build a successful emergency management program. Participants gain knowledge into available resources including grants, essential elements of an emergency management program, and best practices employed among Tribal Nations.

Target Audience: The target audience consists of those responsible for establishing and implementing Tribal Government emergency management programs. This may include emergency managers, Tribal Government department leaders, and responders.

Course Core Capabilities:

- Community resilience
- Planning

Course Details:

- No prerequisites required
- Course Length: 1.5 hours
- Live-instructor training

Certification:

A certificate will be issued to participants who successfully complete this course.

DELIVERED IN PARTNERSHIP BY

